Throughout the original soundtracks of Q.U.B.E. 2, you will hear carefully crafted original musical compositions and musical themes which express the mood and atmosphere of the games. This soundtrack presents a unique experience that you cannot find elsewhere. In Q.U.B.E. 2, you are placed in an environment with two hands. Pick up objects, create tools, move platforms and walls with your hands, communicate with non-player characters or even your hands, and use objects to solve puzzles. Q.U.B.E. 2 offers a unique interplay between words and music. If you want to get to the bottom of the game, you will have to play the game with all its features. Creating music is a complex artistic act which requires experience, knowledge and courage. Q.U.B.E. 2 Original Soundtrack includes over 60 minutes of music and 28 audio tracks. The game is free to download and play, and consists of six single player modes (Campaign, Arcade, Survival, Tourney, Endless, and Time Trial), and four two player modes (Net, Online, Split-Screen and Cooperative). Stardock has released a direct update to Prison Architect. The latest patch changes the game so that the player now gets one building per city and allows the player to build any combination of prison type buildings to create new cities. Additionally, the built-in tool to design buildings has been expanded to create buildings from a wide range of styles. New features include: - Build a massive sprawling city, or a more compact and efficient city-within-a-city - Design your prison to be an island, a prison colony, or a huge, sprawling metropolis - Design a maximum security, solitary confinement, or loony bin - Design a high-security prison that will be well-protected, or a prison with amenities - Add a supermax prison to your design - Build prison design and amenities by choosing from a wide range of styles - Build better housing units using the redesigned housing tool - Build a prison to be modular, or to be built as a monolithic structure - Change the characteristics of your housing units - Track occupancy and attempt to balance your prison population - Set preferences for the shape, size, and appearance of your prison - View your prison design on a massive map to see where your prison sits - Freeplay mode - Multiplayer modes - Custom modes - New: World map, design mode and plenty more Two great games, the PC remake of the classic pixel art platformer roguelike METAL SLUG and the excellent 2D rogue-like ROTTEN. Both excellent games, highly recommended. Also, there is now a proper bug fix for the game, so the loading screens won't break any connection between the game and the network. This means your savegames will now also remain after a crash. And the game should no longer crash when a minor graphical glitch is detected on the last level of the game. In addition, the devs have now fixed a couple of other minor issues. Get METAL SLUG!Get ROTTEN!Get both! If you have not played METAL SLUG yet, then you should! It is a great game! The METAL SLUG Kickstarter for a fully-fledged Mac version is finally

What's new in Retrowave Drift:

to Arrest I made a prank call this morning at 6:15 am in Geneva. The call happened to be placed at the international telephone call center of the Swiss banking group UBS. The events of the morning (below) made it very entertaining to say the least. The main story so far is that apparently a prank call was made to Switzerland's de facto state run bank this morning. The call is to the international call center serving UBS and has been recorded and is available on the Internet. Many have listened to the call and made a simple judgment call, like me. The call is pure, nothing but fiction. So far, none of the callers have claimed they were removed from their jobs as a result of the call. They may be disappointed. If a real caller does not claim to be from the Swiss banking industry or a member of law enforcement, the ordinary listener has it right as it sounds like fiction. The stories about how the call was made and the perps may or may not have ended are similar to a story we posted last week about a prank call telling of a man who had to have an aneurysm removed. The moral of the story was don't have a heart attack if you are part of the fourth estate. The call was probably about the Swiss banking industry. Because UBS employs 50,000 people worldwide and 40,000 of them are in Switzerland, the call could refer to many areas. The call begins with the fake bad guy talking about some corrupt Swiss bank officials involved in the fixing of the LIBOR, the London InterBank Offered Rate which sets the interest rates that banks charge one another to borrow money. The call is hard to make out at the very beginning so we'll have to wait and see. In my opinion, the phone call is pure fiction. UBS has a house numbering system so a call to the international center could be used to dial all of the other global centers. The international call center service is not the only service that employees can call. Each global center provides multiple services which can be called, UBS' globally has more than 10,000 telephone numbers. The most important story is the false and misleading nature of the call. This is the whole text (truncated) of the phone call: "Hello, UBS speaking. How may I direct your call?" "I have bad news

Hinterhalt 3 is a fast, fun and action packed toy soldiers game for browser. Hinterhalt 3 is not only a fast-paced shooter where you can carry on a whole battlefield, but also a special arena where you can show of your skills on a completely automatic and ambient environment. You can play with your friends and enemies in the 2 player coop or with a single player game for unlimited goals. Featured Game modes: Skirmish: Eliminate all opponents and protect your team mates. The first team reaching a specific number of eliminations wins the match, the other one will go home as the big loser. Ambush: A capture the flag based game mode with slight variations where the attacking team must capture all the flags within a given life-budget. The defending team on the other hand has an infinite number of spawn, however, must defend the flags by all cost. Luckily, it disposes of heavy weapons such as mortars, artillery and static machine guns and decimate and blow away the enemy. Zombies: Rules are simple. You spawn, they spawn, you run out of ammo, you need to find ammo, eventually you lose....or...who knows! Obviously, Zombies get stronger throughout the game, making it more and more unlikely to survive and an ever-increasing challenge. Commander: In this auto battle based mini-game you define the actual spawn areas of your soldiers and strategically position heavy weapons. Maps are randomly generated and thus require new strategies and positioning per match and the first team to reach a specific number of kills wins. Art Style: Carefully designed art style, a mix between low poly and cartoon, and selectively chosen sounds, outlandish animations, GUI and visual effects provide a great addition to the whole game experience.
